Address, THE WASHINGTON CRITIC,

MAN-AFRAID-OF-THE-WATER.

About the first question a stranger asks on arriving at one of our leading hotels is whether the Potomac River water is dangerous to drink. Visitors, as a general thing, put the question with an air of nervous apprehension and a pale, scared look, such as might be expected were some great epidemic raging, and as though they were entering the city at the peril of their lives.

The consequence is, whatever quieting assurances they may receive of the harmless and refreshing character of the beverage which Nature has so copiously furnished for the uses of the National Capital, they cut their sojourn here as short as possible, avoiding a hydrant, when they see it, as they would a man with the confluent smallpox, and even postponing a good, square wash till they are once safely outside the limits of the District.

This is no fanciful nor exaggerated statement. The fact is, that the senseless scare, which was originally intended for nothing but to make a point against the District Government, has got out of the control of its authors and spread all over the country, until people at a distance actually believe that Washington is in danger of a water famine and pestilence combined.

As a political scheme it is a most barren failure. It has rather helped than hurt the objects at which it was directed, and, speaking from a business standpoint, it has not only done the city great damage in dollars and cents, but put a stain upon its sanitary reputation abroad which it will require weeks and months to wear

This, too, in face of well ascertained and scientific facts, showing the water of the Potomac, with which we are supplied, to be pure and healthful, uncommonly free of deleterious elements and subject only to temporary deteriorations in taste and odor by vegetable infusion, such as are usual to all quiet waters at certain seasons, whether confined in reservoirs or not.

The originators of the footish alarm seem nevertheless bent upon its constant iteration, notwithstanding the exposure of its folly and the precautionary measures that have been taken to prevent the possibility of that which now only exists in an unreasoning imagination.

Our friends throughout the country should give themselves no uneasiness The people of Washington are drinking the same old water day after day and experience no evil effects from it. It is good enough for anybody to drink, and stranger as well as citizen can partake of it freely without fear of contamination. The best answer to the howl that has been raised about its impurity and unfitness to use is found in the general healthfulness of the

THE CIVIL-SERVICE COMMISSION A correspondent desires to know whether there is likely to be any change in the present Board of Civil-Service Commissioners, and if not, why not.

There is a vagueness about the inquiry which stands somewhat in the way of a direct answer. The Carrie is quite sure, however, that there is to be no change in the board, and does not know of any reasons why there should be. It has always considered the Commissioners fully capable of administering the law.

Very likely some mustaken ideas have got abroad concerning these gentlemen It has been said for instance of Judge Eaton that he is austere, of Colonel Gregory that he is more pedantic than practical, and of Dr. Thoman that he is impulsive and convivial; all which are great errors and do the board miustice.

Instead of being austere and frigid of manner, Judge Eaton is of a highly ardent and emotional temperament, while Colonel Gregory would be taken anywhere for a free-and-easy roysterer, were it not for the established accuracy of his moral deportment. The only real ascetic on the board is Dr. Thoman, whose gloomy and somewhat misanthropic turn of mind is a source of great solicitude to his friends.

But so far as THE CRITIC knows they are all excellent, competent men, whose personal peculiarities in nowise interfere with the thorough discharge of their official duties, and it would be an extremely difficult matter to make any improve-PARALLELS WITHOUT PARALLEL. Senator Dawes is convinced that the Republican Senate will seven the Senator Dawes beconvinced that the Republican Senate will seven the Senate would resist confirmation offer no particular opposition to President Cieveland's appoint of fill unexpired terms of fill unexpired terms of offensive partisans. This is Mr. Cieveland's opinion of many confirmation would imply an indersement of the supersion of Republican office holders, to which he did not think the Senate would submit.—(Chicago Special New York World.

As Mr. Dawes was probably a member of the March caucus which outlined a programme of Senatorial action for next winter, he ought to know best what he is talking about. Our esteemed contemporary must be misinformed about the Senator's position, and The Chiric is again

MINISTER DENBY'S SPEECH.

The speech made by Mr. Charles Denby. the new Minister to China, on occasion of a recent serenade given in his honor at Evansville, Ind., will sound like discordant music in the cars of our Califor nia friends, so far as it refers to the people with whom his diplomatic fortunes are to be east.

Out in San Francisco, where a Chinaman is esteemed to have no more soul than a gorilla, and no right to set his foot in a free country for the purpose of making an honest living, Colonel Denby's sentiments will be voted rank heresy and the Administration will be charged with sympathies which no true Californian is bound to respect.

The new Minister actually had the audacity to say that ne was going to a race

"How did you come to fall in love with Mattle Cook, Fred? Her face isn't the prettiest in the world."

"I admit that, Bob, but then she's a lovely character and such a pretty foot."

"Oh! then it was her foot that led you to adore Mat?"—[Yonkers Gazette.

celebrated for its courtesy and its knowl edge of men"-to a people "who were civilized before America had been discovcred"-to "the treasure-house of the world;" and he was bold enough to hope that he might have "the information, the tact, the tolerance," as he had the dedre, "to do nothing but good to the distinguished people" to whom he was accredited.

In other words, Minister Denby wants to go to China, where he expects to reside for the next four years, with the olivebranch of good-fellowship in his hand, instead of a copy of the Chinese Immigration act; and as he wishes to be well received and make his mission of some practical use to the international interests of the two countries, he is certainly wise in going as a friend rather than as an

Now THAT Senator Dawes has found it out, we presume it will be no longer disputed that the famous Oklahoma lands are partly occupied by cattle-men, whom General Hatch has not seen fit to drive out as trespassers, as he did Captain Couch, and that the Creek Indians are not op posed to having the lands thrown open for settlement, provided the Government will buy the strip of about 6,000,000 acres lying between Oklahoma and Kansas, which Mr. Dawes thinks the Government ought to do. We have thought all along that Captain Couch was a badly misrepresented individual, and we are now convinced of it. The cattle ranches must go out and the settlers must come in.

THE committee of the House of Lords resterday began to consider the claim of Major Maitland to the Lauderdale peerage. This is the case in which Senator Edmunds will testify before the Lords concerning the law of marriage in the American colonies in 1772. It is calculated by shrewd scientists that when the announcement comes that Mr. Edmunds has given the effete Lords the points which they want that the Green Mountains will hump themselves to a height of at least six additional inches.

THE Conference of Charities and Correction adjourned last evening, after what the outgoing president, Mr. Garrett of Philadelphia, pronounces the most successful session ever held. The members of the conference were also much pleased with the hospitality of their reception here, and delighted beyond expression with the beauty of the National Capital, as seen to such supreme advantage in the leafy month of June.

SENATOR MILLER of New York is just now bending his powerful intellect to the organization of a fishing club, with the view of purchasing a large tract of land, including several fine lakes, up in Hamilton County, Amos Cummings, Titus Sheard and several other distinguished journalists and publicists are members of the syndicate, and the new purchase will doubtless become a great summer resort for visiting statesmen.

THE Mexican band which proved so strong a feature of attraction at the New Orleans Exposition has started out on a tour through the principal cities of the United States, under the management of Junius Hart of New Orleans, who agrees to pay them $4,000 a week and expenses. The music is no doubt delightful to listen to, but at such figures to the producers is bound to come high to the consumers.

The crusade against Potomac water and the simultaneous establishment here of a St. Louis beer agency may have been a mere coincidence, but now that the Republican has set up a Potomae drinking fountain right alongside its own office, it looks as though our esteemed contemporary had gone back on his native lager.

Some people are wondering what Minister Lowell will do for a living when he gets back home. There need be no fear as to his future. Mr. Lowell, if worse comes to worst, can open a wholesale confectionery stand. He has an inexhaustible stock of English taffy already in hand.

COMMISSIONERS for the exchange of orisoners are not wanted between the British Government and the Mahdi. The Englishman didn't capture any prisoners to speak of. As for the Mahdi's, such of his as are able to travel, he is magnanimously allowing to desert.

It is proposed to hold a Poker Congress in this country next month. The date seems somewhat ill-chosen, in view of the fact that the Hon. Boyd Winchester will sail in a few days to assume his duties as Minister to Switzerland.

Mr. Hines, the absconding Idaho postmaster, has bid his native land good-bye and gone to Farewell. British Columbia.

MR. RANDALL'S POSITION.

The Pennsylvania Idea in Regard to Of-the face of the moon.

fensive Partisanship. "I talked with Mr. Randall about the offices," said Colonel Goode of St. Louis, to the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "He takes the st. Louis Globe-Democrat. "He takes the ground that questions of this kind should be virtually determined by the Representatives; that the Representatives should have a great deal and the Senators very little to say to the President about the candidates for appointments. He gives pretty strong reasons for his position. The Administration should get advice from as near the people as possible in the matter of selections, and the Representatives are therefore best qualified to recomtives are therefore best qualified to recom-mend. Then he thinks it doubtful pro-priety on the part of Senators to go to the White House in the Interests of certain candidates when they will be called upon hereafter to pass upon the appointments.

"He said to me, 'I wouldn't give a nickel for a man who isn't an offensive partisan in the sense now applied to the term, actively in the interest of the party to which he belongs. I am an offensive partisan myself. Officeholders should be removed because they are Republicans. Public sentiment, in my opinion, would sustain such a course."

"I asked Mr. Randall if he thought any of Mr. Cleveland's nominations would be fought in the Senate.

"They undoubtedly will, said he, and there I think the President's position would be stronger if he stood on the broad plank of the right to surround himself with the members of his own party. I have urged the Administration to pursue this course rather than to rely upon the offen-sive partisanship. The latter is a flimsy pretense to my mind."

"Mr. Randall further remarked that in his conversations with members of the Administration he had steadily urges his views, but he did not venture an opinion as to whether offensive partisanship as to whether offensive partisanship would be drouped and this more practical policy be adopted."
